Bundi loves saying encouraging words to others in the Serengeti. (Bundi, pronounced 'boon-dee,' is Swahili for owl.)Every year in the jungle animals gather to debate on what makes a good mate, but for Bundi when it comes to debating, she really struggled. This year, when her animal friends fight because they can't agree on whose saying is best, Bundi is left feeling scared, and wants to run and hide in a safe place to find rest. But something special then happens, amazingly she finds her voice and sings a beautiful song on how we can choose to be kind to others in our actions each day. With gorgeous pictures this timely, inspiring book is simple in its message of expressing kindness to others. It is such a great way to teach children that kindness often takes courage and that any person can show kindness. Be inspired to imagine a world where everyone is kind.

Essays on Language, Communication and Literature in Africa explores language choice questions, together with domain-driven lingua-communicative and literary resources situated within the discourses of law, culture, medicine, visual art, politics, the media, music and literature in Africa. It identifies the distinctive African paraphernalia of these discourses, and foregrounds their real-world and mediated cultural and societal values, and highlights the Western presence through the inclusion of aspects of Shakespearean perspectives which bear universal tidings and speak to the African gender tradition. The chapters' attention to verbal and visual artistic communicative mechanisms underlines such engagements as multilingualism policies, socio-political declension, social dynamism and cultural interventions that characterise the African setting. These realities are discussed in impressive detail, authoritative scholastic depth and effective stylistic tones that reflect the authors' familiarity with the facets of African societies deducible from language, communication and literature.
